City of Burlington, Town of Ossipee to Celebrate Completion of Highway 87 Water Line

OSSIPEE, NC— At 10:00 a.m. on Thursday, May 5, officials from the City of Burlington and Town of Ossipee will join together at Altamahaw Ossipee Fire Station #2 to commemorate the completion of a five mile section of water line connecting the Town of Ossipee with the City of Burlington’s water system.

The water line, which has been under construction for almost a year, went into service in late April and has the capacity to serve the Town of Ossipee with up to 100,000 gallons of water per day. Not only will the availability of municipal water relieve the Town of Ossipee from a well system, it will also provide increased fire protection capabilities. The design and construction of the line was funded in part by the North Carolina Department of Environmental Quality’s Drinking Water State Revolving Fund.

The celebration’s program will include remarks from Ossipee Mayor Mark Whitman, Burlington Mayor Ian Baltutis, and the N.C. Department of Environmental Quality’s, Seth Robertson as well as a commemorative toast, photo opportunities, and refreshments.
